Save Money and Frayed Nerves on Your Divorce Through We The People

Walnut Creek, CA – Fifty-two-year-old real estate agent Thelma from Walnut Creek did not even consider hiring a lawyer for her uncontested divorce. Instead, she marched right into the local We The People (WTP) office. She was sure working with Bill and Mary of Walnut Creek WTP would be more economical than using an attorney...and she was right. Typically, lawyers charge at least $5000 for an uncontested divorce, and she paid only $399 plus filing fees (approximately $300).

Moreover, Thelma reports that Bill and Mary of WTP, Walnut Creek, give customers personal attention. “At a moment’s notice, they knew information about my case.” She could call or come in anytime, and at least one of three people was always available. “Everything happened in the time frame expected and they were able to work around my schedule.”

Fifty-six-year-old psychotherapist, Anne, from Walnut Creek, took her uncontested divorce to WTP, Walnut Creek, as well. Anne found Bill and Mary to be helpful and responsive. “I could take all the time I needed with them,” she remarked. Of course, one must always make an appointment to see an attorney, and the clock starts ticking the moment a lawyer speaks to a client on the phone.

Because of the excellent service Anne received, she has decided to manage her living trust with We The People, Walnut Creek, and secure the future for her grown children.

Unlike Thelma and Anne, 64-year-old Miriam Plum of Brentwood, has had a more difficult experience working with attorneys on her divorce. However, the ordeal made her realize the value of property, and prompted her to get a living trust so there would be no problems allotting what she wanted for her children. And this time, she used We The People, which she claims was faster, friendlier and less costly.
